PURPOSE OF THE COURSE

The 2024 Course on Molecular Characterization of Cancers and Target Therapy has the objective to integrate aspects of basic and translational research with clinical research, allowing an effective interdisciplinary and multidisciplinary interaction between researchers and physicians.

Very often clinicians are not interested in cancer etiopathogenesis tout court (highly necessary for public health programs and epidemiological/molecular studies), being mainly focused on the pathways that can be easily pharmacologically targeted with drugs already available. The oncologists recruited by Francesco Perri are young medical oncologists who still want to research new approaches with the audacity and the ability to carry out phase one/two clinical trials. This type of course will certainly be very relevant for the formation and training of both physicians and bio-medical scientists.
